

as reaching only 860,000 uninsured children. I understand that this is a complicated matter because some funds will be used for direct services and not to purchase insurance. But it just shows you that this whole area is not cheap.

We heard from Bruce Vladeck it costs about $1,000 or so for a good, solid insurance policy. We also know that the Federal share of Medicaid this year averages about $860 per child.

In the first year of the CHILD Program there will be an even 50/50 split between health care and deficit reduction so that $3 billion will be used for program costs. In year five, this program component will grow to $5 billion.

Using these numbers as a guide, it seems reasonable to expect that, depending a great deal how states chose to implement this program that our bill will be able to cover about 3.5 million or so children in the early years of the program and about 5 million children in the fifth year.

There are many variables such as which States chose to participate, what their State matching requirement is, what coinsurance and copayments they require, and so on. We must also take into account inflation which will erode the purchasing power of the yearly allocation.

Another way to look at the problem is to see how many children the $16 billion in the budget agreement could cover. This $16 billion amounts to an average of $3.2 billion per year. If we used all of this money to buy Medicaid coverage at $860 per child, it would cover about 3.7 million children.

This would still leave 1 million children under 125% of poverty with no health insurance.

Twenty-four billion dollars is about $4.8 billion per year spread over 5 years.

Depending on how States implement the program, cost-sharing requirements and so forth, I think that would cover between 5 and 6.5 million, perhaps 7 million children.

RAINES V. BYRD

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, earlier today, in a seven-to-two decision, the United States Supreme Court ruled that Members of Congress do not have the requisite constitutional standing necessary to challenge the Line Item Veto Act.

That decision overturns the April 10 ruling of the U.S. District Court, which held that the Act does, indeed, injure
